'Tis the Season—Time to Create Your Very Own Christmas Tree and Decorations

What a fun way of getting ready for the festivities! How about making your very own tree by using recycled wrapping paper from last year or from a birthday? You can use other paper material too! The end result will be a stunning wall hanging celebrating the season. — Of course, there is more. Natural and recycled materials are waiting for our young artists. Cardboard, corn starch dough, pasta, plastic and more can all be transformed and made into great decorations for this or any other season. Imagination is the limit. — We have aprons but recommend that you don't wear your best outfit.

Fenella Flutterwing & Munching Mike—Enviro Detectives at Work Investigating Butterflies

Who doesn't like butterflies? They are colourful and have so much beauty. Seeing them makes us feel happy, and we know it's summer. — We look for young detectives who want to know more about butterflies. What better way than finding all the answers by putting wings on and becoming a butterfly for one morning. Let's check out the life cycle of a butterfly, find out how the adult butterfly finds food, what food it is and how it is consumed. Investigate how caterpillars feed themselves and with what? Are they like the very hungry caterpillar and eat everything or are they picky? What happens when they outgrow their skin? How do butterflies see the world? Just like humans or differently? This is learning by having lots of fun. And we top it all by celebrating a butterfly wedding.

Colourful Bottle Cap and Other Creations

Plastic is everywhere. It's not like compost which turns into good soil for growing vegies or flowers. Plastic doesn't break down like plant based leftovers or leaves. It often ends up in our waterways, and aquatic life thinks it's food and becomes very ill. There is lots to be learned about how to avoid using plastic. — Where do all the many milk, soda and juice bottles end up? What do you do with the many caps of all these bottles? Let's reuse them and create something amazing. Become a bottle cap artist for one morning and create butterflies, beetles, flowers or an entire landscapes for fun and decorate the CWCN Centre with them. This is a great team work task. After that, we'll recycle even more plastic and transform it into fun items you can use at home.

Tristan Truffle and Pixie Cap — Enviro Detectives at Work Hunting Fungi

What's all this talk about fairy rings, witch's butter, little pixies, ghost and ghouls fungi and toadstools? Our enviro detectives have a lot of work to do. They'll figure out what mushrooms are, how they work, and why they are so important. They'll find out whether they are plants with seeds or something very special all by themselves with no seeds at all. Then there is also the issue of solving a crime, just the right thing for our detectives. Something has happened in the woods. And while all this takes place, they watch what occurs when fungi grow and what they require to grow. Our detectives learn about different types and shapes and whether fungi and plants get on and animals like them, and what would happen if there were no fungi at all in this world. This truly is a morning for investigators who are also budding scientists. Lots of hands on activities promise fun.

The Fantastic Plastic, Tin & Cardboard Concert Band!

Yeah! We are making music. Before we give our first concert, we have to understand what sound is and how it comes about. That alone is lots of fun because we hear elephants, see rice dance, feel and see sound move. Then we have to create our very own instruments. For that we recycle all sorts of everyday materials. Can an old shoe box be a ukulele, a pipe a trumpet or a rasperradoohoo (I bet you want to know what that is)? Can drinking straws sing, beakers imitate animals, can kitchen rolls sound like rain? Have you ever played a thongaton? Our little orchestra will have quite a variety of exciting instruments, and we'll have loads of fun!
